Thomas International, a global provider of on-demand management systems and business assessment tools, is delighted to announce the opening of a new Birmingham city centre office.

Located in Brindley Place, the heart of the business district, it creates a firm footprint for Thomas in Birmingham and the West Midlands.

As the number of consultants in the region increased so did the need to be able to provide an office as a base to support existing clients.

Sam Lotriet, Sales Manager for the West Midlands comments, "the West Midlands, and Birmingham in particular, is hugely important to Thomas as a business and our investment in the area underscores this. Three new consultants join the Birmingham team in January, bringing the headcount to seven. We will also be able to provide additional support and help to clients in the form of a client coordinator, who joins us in January. We have some fantastic clients in this region and the new office will enable us to help and support them much better as our team here grows."

Thomas' web-based behavioral, aptitude and ability tests analyze people's style at work, identify their strengths and limitations and help measure their mental agility. All users receive comprehensive training on how to apply and use Thomas' on-demand management systems and business tools, delivered via an experienced team of trainers. Thomas is able to offer a large range of dates and locations in every country we operate in.

Lotriet continues, "Birmingham plays a vital part in our business strategy which is why we have invested heavily in the region over the last twelve months. 2006 saw the creation of a dedicated team of Birmingham consultants to respond more effectively to the needs of clients and respond to the business opportunities which present themselves. The opening of the new office is the culmination of this effort and we will be looking to rapidly expand this team to over the course of the next year."
