Thomas International Launches New On-Demand Job Profiling Software

Thomas International, a leading provider of on-demand behavioral personality assessments announced today that the launch of the newest addition to their already robust suite of on-demand behavioral assessment suite - Job Profiling.

Thomas International's Job Profiling tool enables clients to understand the specific behavioral characteristics required in any job. Before hiring managers can recruit the right person to the right role they need to understand not only the candidate's profile but also that of the role itself.

The new web-based job profiling software from Thomas International helps clients to identify the key behavioral requirements of the role being recruited for in a natural and intuitive way. The software is structured to give Thomas clients a template for a job into which they can slot a candidate and provides an objective view of the characteristics required for the role.

Results of the on-demand Job Profiling tool can then be compared against the Personality Profile Analysis (PPA), Thomas' proprietary behavioral assessment tool, report in order to assess how well the candidate would 'fit' the role.
